Super or hyper grace teaching is gaining both adherents and detractors across continents and denominations. Those in support of this teaching find new liberty from guilt and condemnation in its emphasis on the grace of God, while others question the denigration of the law of God and the manner in which Scripture is interpreted.

Without a doubt, the message has mass appeal, with the messengers who deliver the teaching being both charming and eloquent, greatly aiding the cause.

- Is this a fresh revelation from God or a deception of the devil?
- Why is grace teaching so compelling, yet divisive?
- Are law and grace - both of God - truly opposed to each other?
- What is the root issue over which we are concerned?
